Katy,

Since this is a graduation, it is tradition that you endure advice from those who love you, especially your parents. Before proceeding further with advice, we would like to take this time to tell you, in the remote chance you do not already feel it, how immensely proud we are of you on multiple levels, as we see you evolving into an extraordinary young woman (and no, this does not mean we will consider relaxing any rules). Now, moving on to the painful ritual of parental advice.

It is about this time in your life when we start to give serious consideration to what we would like for ourselves in the future. In your mind, there may even be hazy images beginning to form of what you want to do with your life, or perhaps some of the things you hope to accomplish. As these hazy images begin to come into focus it is tempting to chart the shortest and most efficient course to each goal, so as to reach them all in the shortest possible time. And though efficiency is laudable, bear in mind that time saved can sometime come at the cost of experience. Although trips are always reported in terms of a place visited, wise travelers know that it is the journey that matters most, not the destination. We are told that as we go through life we should stop and smell the roses. Our advice to you is that this is not enough. Do not be content to sample the rose's faint scent as it wafts by on the breeze. Instead, wade in among the blossoms inhaling deeply to fill yourself with their sweet fragrance. At the same time drink in their beauty with your eyes as you caress their silken form. And when you emerge, if you do not have pollen on your nose you have done something wrong. So, pick your destination and then choose your journeys wisely, without fear of those that appear difficult or less traveled. And remember to get pollen on your nose as often as possible. In the end, it is our journeys, and how we travel them, that mold us into who we are.

Love, Mom and Dad

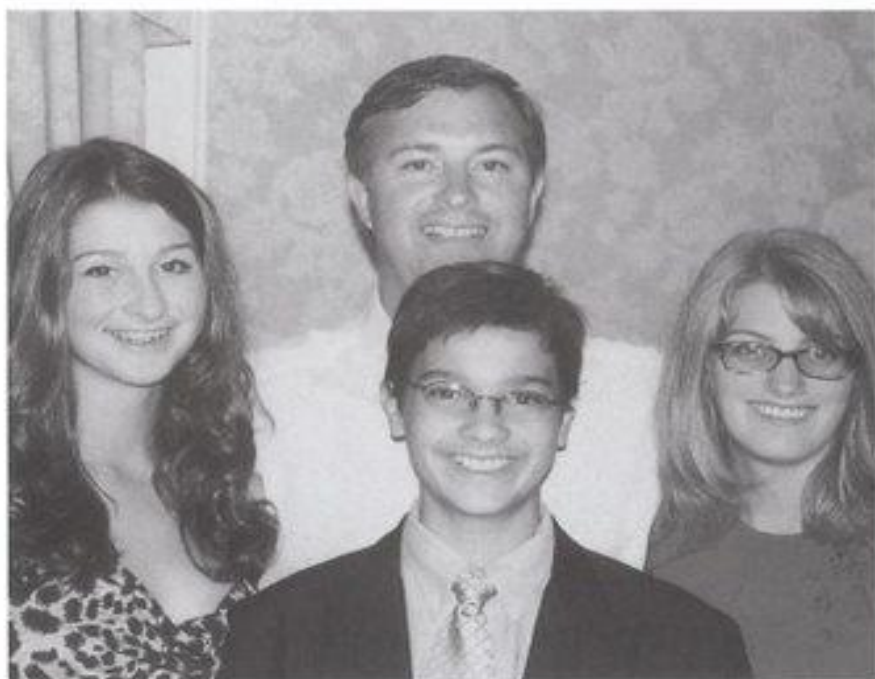

Dear Eric,

Congratulations! You've done a great job and we are very proud of you. We know you will continue to have fun and be successful.

Brianna,

We love you,

Congratulations MEESH!
*We are so proud of you! Your family will always be your biggest fans! We love you and know that if you keep smiling.....keep working hard.....keep excelling.....and keep singing!.....your accomplishments will be unlimited!
 You are the best!*

 Mom and Dad; Natalie, Matt, and Isaac; Carrie and David; Nate, Eric,
 Blake and Jordan*

Congratulations
 Amber
 and best wishes for your High School years
 Love,

Chad,
Graduation from LVDS signifies a future goals and accomplishments.

each challenge you face.

Dear Adam,

Congratulations Son! It warms my heart to watch you grow, day by day. You bring Joy to my life. Let these lofty thoughts inspire your heart and mind....

Be loving and kind towards all life, including your own, at all times, no matter what. Be forgiving and gentle to that which is supportive of life. Align yourself with Truth and be positive, don't deal in falsehood and negativity. Carry with you a light heart and sense of humor.

And... in the end..... the love you take..... is equal to the love... you make.....

-Lennon & McCartney

The individual human mind is like a computer terminal connected to a giant database. The data base is human consciousness itself, of which our own consciousness is merely an individual expression, but with its roots in the common consciousness of all mankind. This database is the realm of genius; because to be human is to participate in the database. Everyone, by virtue of his birth has access to genius.
